BETWEEN OURSELVES.

As local politics is the only live subject this morning, any disquisition on fruit, climate or other foreign matter would probably be regarded ill timed or irrelevant. The contest between Mr. Monihan and Mr. Kellner which is being so hotly waged is surely worthy of a little attention. On the one hand we have Old Jim Monihan, who first came to this Salt River valley in 1861, on his way from California with a company of volunteers marching to the defense of the Union. He built the second house in Phoenix, and in 1871 planted the first cottonwood tree in the village. Ever since then his record here has been that of an active, industrious, enterprising man, progressive to a degree that was considered even foolhardy. When, in full confidence of the future of Phoenix, he pulled down his old livery barn and commenced the Monihan block there were people who said he was a fit candidate for the brick institution on the Tempe road of which he was director.

That he will make a model mayor it seems ridiculous to deny. Mr. Monihan is not a classical scholar, as has been claimed for his opponent; nor is he a Demosthenes. But he is a man of ripe business experience, natural sound judgment and possessed of a wonderful faculty of taking pride in that which is his. It is said of him that when the Monihan block was building he was wont to place an old cane bottom chair in the middle of the street and note carefully every inch of its upward growth, taking an infinite complacency in the laying of each separate brick. So it will be with the city. Old Jim will take as much pride in administering the affairs of Phoenix in a manner above reproach, in impressing visitors with the natural advantages of the city as a father would in a bright young son. He has the brains, the leisure to attend to the minutest details of the work and the natural enthusiasm beaming upon every feature of his jovial, good-natured countenance.

Jim Monihan is not the sort of man that one hesitates to approach and converse with. All are at ease in his company at once. There is a wholeheartedness and a naturalness about his manner that renders it anything but a disagreeable task to tackle him upon any subject and discuss it freely and easily. He does not hold you off at arm's length and seem to say: "Remember I am of different clay from thee."

There is another man on the Republican ticket who will surprise his friends by his running qualities—Major Lewis. He has been hustling while he waited for some days past and has put in a lot of fine work that will tell, Tuesday. His opponent suffers the notoriety of being a jobber, a schemer and an unsafe man, all for self and naught for the people. This is commonly acknowledged. Not one in twenty of his adherents will deny that he carries this eye-to-the-main-chance business to an inor-minate degree. A feature of McNeil's operations seems to be that for some reason or other they seldom materialize handsomely. People have some respect for a man who makes a grand success of a thing without a great quantity of fruit having been harvested. He has perhaps suffered for want of a golden opportunity and is now surely done for. Lewis and the Second ward voters have already attended to that.

The most striking characteristic of Tom Malloy is that he is as honest as the sun. Then he is fully competent to fill the office to which he aspires, no one who knows him can doubt; that he will perform his every duty unflinchingly and with the strictest conscientiousness is unquestioned. There is nothing underhanded or sly about Tom Malloy. He is the stamp of man who talks out loud, expresses his mind freely and intelligently upon all subjects and looks every man square in the eye; somewhat of a kicker to be sure, but a thorough good fellow and absolutely trustworthy.

For the office of city treasurer is required a responsible man. One in whose hands the funds and accounts of the city are secure beyond peradventure. Such a man is L. M. Christy. He has been weighed in the balance and not found wanting. For this position with out reflecting upon his opponent it seems advisable to let well enough alone. There never has been a murmur at Mr. Christy's work as treasurer. Not to endorse him by a re-election would be a piece of ingratitude, an error calculated to discourage substantial men from allowing their names to be used in connection with such positions.

Between L. J. Wood and Jack Hickey for the office of assessor and tax collector it is difficult to understand how anyone with a speck of judgment and a desire to see the better man win, can hesitate. Wood is a business man possessed of a thorough knowledge of business methods, an expert accountant, and will bring a better knowledge of realty values and a wider personal acquaintance with citizens than any who could be possibly named. The previous occupations of Hickey have not been so well calculated to equip him for the position. While he is a good sort of a fellow and rather deserving he is eminently not fit for the place. Hickey is all right as far as he goes, but he does not fill the bill. There will be no slip shod work or incompetency about Wood's term as assessor.

Frank Moss is running for the council upon grounds of personal popularity, entire fitness, and of being a liberal taxpayer and therefore more deeply concerned about city matters and more deserving of recognition than one whose interests were not all centered here. In his ward Mr. Moss has a legion of friends, who on account of long standing and invariably satisfactory business relations, as well as an intimate knowledge of his personal integrity will look out for him on election day. Moss will make as good a councilman as he is a blacksmith.

A Pleasant Birthday Party.
The pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Freeze was the scene of a happy gathering last Friday night, the occasion being the ninth birthday of their son, Herman. The refreshments consisted of a generous supply of strawberries and ice cream. The evening was enlivened by music and games. Mrs. Freeze was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. Marlow, Mrs. Walton and Miss Al. Austin. The guests were Misses Birdie Shott, Esther Kelly, Hattie Winters, Todie McCullough, Mary Baker, Mamie Pearson, Bella Forbes, Dora Ward, Emma Freeze; Masters Clarence Pearson, Willie Hunter, Clement Buckler, Theodore Randall, Willie Searles, Roy Hammond, Eyart Holcome, Arthur Lubbs, Johnny Boyd, Lloyd and Herman Freeze.
